Fred Hartig, 62, Kenwood, Trapped When Auto Falls Through Ice Companion Escapes

Leon Lord, of Bernhards Bay, Leaps to Safety When Rescue Fails

Fred Hartig, 62, of Kenwood, was drowned Sunday when his automobile sank through the ice in Oneida Lake. His companion, Leon Lord of Bernhards Bay, leaped to safety.

The accident took place a mile off the Bernhards Bay shore as the two men drove out to inspect "tip-ups" set in the ice the night before. They were passing over a ridge caused by buckling of ice when the car dropped into 28 feet of water.

Lord, who was on the running board, was able to scramble to firm ice but Hartig went down with the car. His body was recovered by state police late in the afternoon.

Harry M. Stacy, district attorney of Oswego County, released the body to Munroe & Dunbar, Oneida funeral directors. He said death was due to accidental drowning.

"We started out fishing about 9 A. M.," Lord told state police. "After we had driven out three quarters of a mile, the ice got sort of rough and piled up. I got out, walked ahead and tested it out. It looked all right."

State police said Lord told them he then motioned for Hartig to drive ahead. Suddenly there was a sound of breaking ice and the car began to settle.

Hartig made a frantic effort to open a door but the car had settled too far. Lord, who had leaped from the running board, smashed a window with an ax but the car dropped to the bottom, carrying the driver with it. Lord managed to reach firm ice.

Other fishermen, who saw the accident, called for help.

As troopers reconstructed the mishap, Hartig floated free of the car as it settled on the lake bottom. Grapplers, who recovered the body, said it was within a few feet of the hole in the ice.

Trooper Nelson Gyderson of the Camden sub-station, who directed grappling operations, said the car was raised to the surface once, but sank again when the tackle broke. The flying rope hit Herbert Winn, 18, one of the helpers, in the face. He suffered a cut on the face and body bruises.

Hartig, an employe of Oneida, Ltd., and his son, Alfred, 18, lived at Mrs. Florence Fowler's rooming house at Kenwood. He was a native of Blackmans Corners, town of Verona. His wife died 17 years ago.

Besides Alfred, he is survived by two other sons, William Hartig, 332 Lombard Avenue, and Herbert Hartig of New York City; a daughter, Mrs. Arlene Bissell of Baldwinsville, and two brothers, Alfred Hartig of New London and George Hartig of Albany, and a sister in Rome.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 P. M., at St. John's Episcopal Church, Oneida. Burial will be at Rathbun, near Utica.

Jersey Detains 2 Youths In Fatal Remsen Holdup

Special Dispatch to The Herald

Onondaga, Feb. 14.—Whether two boys arrested in New Jersey for participation in an attempted hold-up at Remsen in which their father was killed would be brought back to New York State or held in New Jersey for a charge against them there was to be decided today.

Lou Johnson of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, New York state police, was in Hackensack, N. J., conferring with the district attorney of that county over disposition of Raymond B. Hammersten, 19, and Henry L. Hammersten, 17, brothers of Hackensack, who, police said, admitted a robbery in Hackensack as well as the attempt to hold up the Remsen gas station.

Raymond B. Hammersten, Sr., father of the boys, was wounded fatally during the attempt to hold up the gas station Friday night.

Robert Roberts, the attendant, according to police, grabbed a gun from one of the trio. The weapon discharged, the bullet lodging in Hammersten's abdomen. Before he died in a Utica hospital Saturday he told police his name was John Brazen of New York City.

Police said the brothers admitted leaving the man lying on the ground at Remsen and driving back to New Jersey where they were picked up Saturday afternoon.
